insync ubuntu

Insync, an unofficial Google Drive client for Linux, is now available in a repository for Ubuntu, Linux Mint and Debian users and it's recommended you add since you'll get automatic updates.

The Insync repository is available for :

- Ubuntu : natty, oneiric, precise and quantal
- Debian : squeeze and lenny
- Linux Mint : lisa and maya

If you're using one of the above Ubuntu, Debian or Linux Mint versions, add the repository using the following command :

- for Ubuntu :

echo "deb http://apt.insynchq.com/ubuntu $(lsb_release -cs) non-free" | sudo tee
/etc/apt/sources.list.d/insync.list
```

- for Debian :

echo "deb http://apt.insynchq.com/debian $(lsb_release -cs) non-free" | sudo tee -a /etc/apt/sources.list
```

- for Linux Mint

echo "deb http://apt.insynchq.com/mint $(lsb_release -cs) non-free" | sudo tee
/etc/apt/sources.list.d/insync.list
```

Then, for any of the above, import the key and update the software sources :

wget -O - https://d2t3ff60b2tol4.cloudfront.net/services@insynchq.com.gpg.key | sudo apt-key add -
sudo apt-get update
```

And finally, install Insync if you haven't already :

Unity (appindicator) :

sudo apt-get install insync-beta-ubuntu
```

GNOME Shell :

sudo apt-get install insync-beta-gnome
```

Cinnamon :

```
sudo apt-get install insync-beta-cinnamon
```

KDE4 :

sudo apt-get install insync-beta-kde

For other Linux distributions, see the new Insync Linux page : <https://www.insynchq.com/linux>
