Google is inviting you to be part of a field trial to test some new features which sync its products to an even more intuitive degree.

Do a regular Google Search and it will pull information from your Gmail and Google Drive, allowing you to find what information you're looking for faster. This sync-up lets you do a Google search for things like your dinner reservations and items you ordered online.

Now, if you search for an item you purchased and sent the shipping information to your gmail account, you'll now see that information in your search results.

Google posted several examples of what this will look like :
